Letter From The Editor

September / October 2018

Hi Charlotte,

In this issue of My City Magazine, the Clown presents us with his Fall Haunted Attraction List. Every issue he gives readers advice in his column and laughs with his comic strip, Micro Monsters. This installment celebrates this first Frogboy Comic in a series from John Burgin. Resident mixologist, Sabrina, serves up Small City Sangria and you can get to know Justin “Aswell” Blackwood. Meet Red in our Pet Profile and we hope you enjoy this issue and thank you for reading. Don’t forget to check out the exhaustive event listing in this issue and online. You can also subscribe to our biweekly newsletter by emailing ‘subscribe’ to ellengurley@gmail.com.

Enjoy today and every day,

Justin “Aswell” Blackwood

words & photos by Ellen Gurley

If you’ve ever been out in Charlotte, you are probably already familiar with Justin “Aswell” Blackwood. If not, let us introduce you to him in this My City Magazine artist profile. I have known him longer than I can really cite specifically. Back in the ‘90’s, when I was an active DJ and managed other artists, I would see Justin... underage in bars. He got the slip by being a performer. As one of Dominant 7, he rapped his way into clubs and popularity. I used to see him performing in the above outfit at the Hungry Duck (RIP) every time his brother booked the Katskillz Project (formerly on my roster). Scott Blackwood, friendly, local chef and regional, craft beer enthusiast was a very generous promoter who provided a platform, at the time, for many folks who are now famous.

Producing, rapping, DJing Justin “Aswell” Blackwood is the host of the longest running weekly our city can boast at Charlotte’s Snug Harbor in Plaza-Midwood. Knocturnal is each Monday night and it has grown into a living, breathing thing with the support of a culture hungry community. The evening features two cyphers. One is an open mic for regulars and newbies to display their word skills and the other is a noncompetitive circle for breakdancing. Everyone respects each other and it is one of the most crucial staples in our nightlife.

The Blackwood brothers are fully living up to their father’s legacy philanthropically. Scott is an undying champion of all things eat and drink in the area and Justin is constantly supporting everyone’s art in all forms. You can find him behind the tables every Monday occasionally bringing amazing, national acts and at a rare Mr. Invisible show when he and Ill-Use (Blake Matthews) collaborate. Watching Justin tap furiously on his Maschine (translation: beat witchery) is quite an experience to behold. Say hello (just not when he’s mixing).

- Float 1/2 oz brandy on sangria

Small City Sangria

by: Sabrina Hayko

The first time I met Kim Shaw & Rohan Gibbs of Small City Farm, I was working a farm dinner and was incredibly intimidated. Walking into an unfamiliar environment, I did what any good food service employee does - I put my head down and did what I was told. I immediately knew that I could learn a lot from Kim. I did not know how much she would end up teaching me.

Kim was Director of Catering at The Club at Longview in Waxhaw. She started growing vegetables and herbs there. She was laid off in August of 2007. With her husband's encouragement, she started gardening full time in raised beds in her backyard. By October, she was selling produce at Yorkmont Farmers Market.

They began looking for property in 2008, but it wasn't until January of 2010 that they found their current location. The property was owned by an older gentleman who planted muscadine vines in the 1950s. Those vines are still on the property. I received some of those fine grapes in my summer CSA. I also received these beautiful Keiffer Pears that inspired this recipe. These pear trees were the first fruit trees she planted in 2011.

Over the years I have known Kim, she has challenged me to use different ingredients than you usually find in drinks, taught me about Community Supported Agriculture, and showed me that if you put your mind to it, you truly can do anything and not to be afraid to fail. In her words, "every jump has a blind landing".

My City Magazine Pet Profile

Red the Boxer mix

Hi. My name is Red. I am a huge fan of laying on top of copies of My City Magazine or really anything on the floor. I especially like being dressed up in human ladies' accessories. My owner's name is Charles Digby, but everyone seems to call him Charlie. He loves to garden and I love him. He found me wandering around a neighbourhood near him years ago. I hoped he would see the obvious signs that I was used in dog fighting rings. It felt like he did. I now know real love and am so glad that no one responded to the "dog found" posters. Charlie calls me "Redders" a lot and I think it is cute. I enjoy "talking" to his friends when they visit and when he takes me to work with him at Sharpe Company. I think they print stuff there. If you see me out at a brewery, come say hello. I'm told that I am very sweet and gentle.

Ask The Clown

What do I know? I am just a clown

an advice column by the Clown

Dear Clown,

I watch my sister's children often while she works or sometimes when she just wants to be out. Recently, I noticed that something was different with their behavior and asked if they were feeling sick or if they had eaten anything they were not used to. They stated that they were fine, but the behavior continued. I took them to their doctor to make sure everything was alright the last time I was with them and they had a positive test for illegal drugs. The doctor said that this must be reported to child services and I am at a loss for what to do next. I don't want my family split apart.

Sincerely,
Confused Aunt

Dear Confused Aunt,

First and foremost, you must ensure the well-being of the children. I am sure repeated testing will be necessary. If your sister is using drugs and the children are impacted, you must get the children away from her house. Once the state intervenes, they will lay out all the plans to remedy the situation. Be part of that solution.

Protect the children, always,
The Clown

Dear Clown,

I see a therapist once every two months and it was helpful in the beginning, but seems less helpful recently. I think my therapist is less engaged in our conversations lately. I tested this in my last session by saying some gibberish sentences. It went completely unnoticed. I built some comfort and trust here and I don't know if I should make changes or discuss this directly. What would you recommend?

Sincerely,
Patience

Dear Patience,

I have a couple takes here. First, this is a paid service and there are expectations when one engages a paid service. If you these expectations are not being met, speak up or file a complaint. Second, you built a comfort zone, so to speak, with this therapist. We often hear that real growth happens when you step outside your comfort zone, so maybe this is opportunity knocking. Try another therapist. Try four or five others. Don't stop until you feel your needs are properly met.

Dear Clown,

I have been seeing a wonderful woman for close to a year. Whenever we are together, it is always fun and full of that energy that new relationships can have. The trouble I have is that I want to expand this and begin building a life together, but it does not seem that this is what she wants. She seems to regard me as an afterthought lately. We have common interests and we have even ended up in the same places when we could have gone together. I feel like I was a priority at one point, but that she has since reprioritized. Help?

Sincerely,
Wanting More

Dear Wanting,

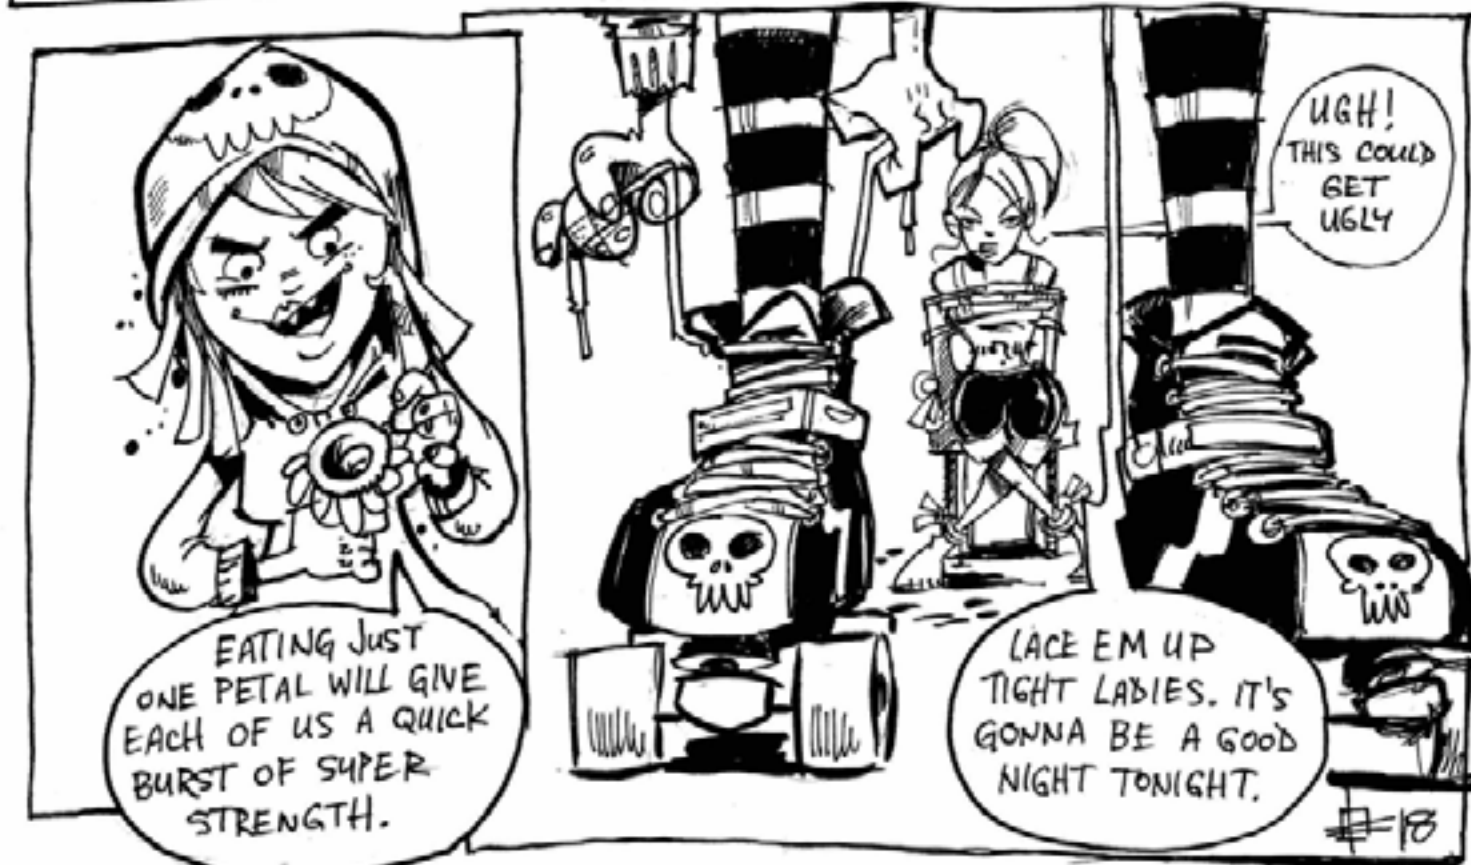

The key to growth in any relationship is open and honest communication. Ask her what her vision is and listen. If you want to support that and feel that it would be a rewarding experience, then move forward. If there is something blocking your efforts, discuss this as well. You will know where your efforts are best placed after this.

No secrets and no grudges,
The Clown

Things I should not have to tell you

1. When you express a fact, ensure that it is indeed a fact.
2. You are entitled to an opinion, unless it is an uninformed opinion that contradicts fact and logic.
3. A tiny bit of consideration for others can last a long time and it is always welcome.
4. Negative is easy. Don't be lazy

Fall Haunted Attraction List

by the Clown

When the most wonderful time of the year arrives and the temperatures begin to drop, the talented people of the haunted house industry come out to play with their new concepts and features. These regional, haunted attractions put on productions that are worth the drive and the admission prices. Check the websites for features, hours of operation, and ticket information and take in the mayhem.

www.Boogerwoods.org

Boogerwoods is a guided attraction that includes multiple haunts to give patrons a well-rounded fright experience. You may get a bit dirty and damp at this one, so dress accordingly. Check the website for dates, times, and policies.

725 Phaniel Church Road, Rockwell, NC, 28138,
704-855-7922

www.FearWorld.com

Netherworld Haunted House is the undisputed king of haunted houses in the region. Netherworld has two enormous, walk-through, haunted attractions and there are escape rooms for a separate entry fee. You could spend an entire day exploring here. Don't forget to check out the resplendent gift shop.

2076 West Park Place Boulevard, Stone Mountain,
GA, 404-608-2484

www.NCHauntedFarm.com

Just a short drive can get you to The Haunted Farm, a three part attraction taking you through a wooded trail, a farm, and a haunted hayride.

624 Townsend Road, Hendersonville, NC 28762,
828-702-7911

www.RaleighHauntedHouse.com

The Haunted Forest at Panic Point is an outdoor trail delivering scares all along the half mile path. Several smaller attractions are featured here as well, including laser shots at zombies. Wear shoes proper for outdoors.

2808 Cedar Creek Road, Youngsville, NC 27596,
919-526-8612

www.ScarriganFarms.com

Weekends in October see a transformation of this 170 acre farm into one of the scariest, haunted trails in the region. Scarrigan Farms has varying features along the trail that will transport you to new areas of terror. Get your boots on and prepare for the thrills of this attraction.

1213 Oak Ridge Farm Highway, Mooresville, NC
28115, 704-644-1450

www.Spookywoods.com

Kersey Valley Spookywoods is an enormous attraction which has a midway, corn maze, trams, and haunts that are certain to chill and thrill. The experience has been known to include the 1930's farm house where the very walls will attack you. Make sure to visit the gift shop and wear sensible shoes.

1615 Kersey Valley Rd., Archdale, NC 27263,
336-431-1700
