- 14 EVENTS IN YOUR CITY

Hi Charlotte,

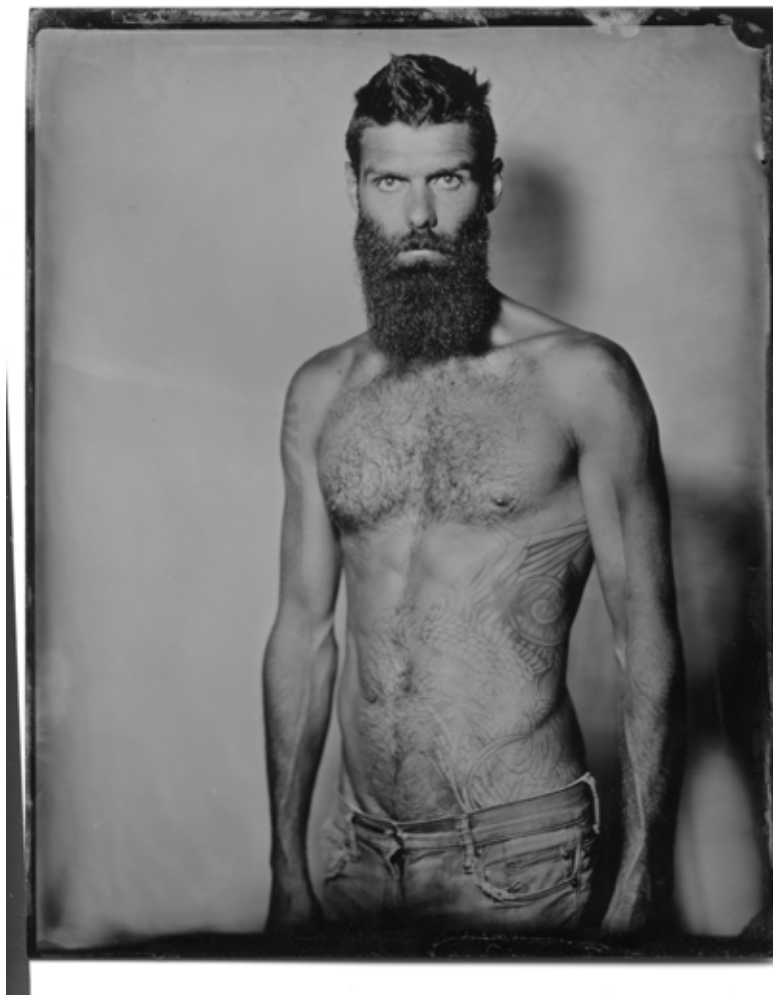

Spring has sprung. Get out there and enjoy some festivals or shows. Our event listing is in the back. In this issue we catch up with Martin "the Clown" Barry as he and the Charlotte Roller Girls gear up to start their 2015 season. He also throws in another comic strip and follows up with his advice column. We also get to know Linda Martinez of StyleNow! as our resident fashionista, Mandi English, interviews her. We also take a stroll through new Charlotte store, the Stash Pad, enjoy a few beers in Hickory and admire tintype photography by Jeff Howlett. And as always, we have the "didja know" section containing interesting things you might not have known were happening in your area. Don't forget to view the venue list online for a complete guide to local farmers markets. 'Tis the season.

Enjoy today and every day,
Ellen Gurley and the other My City Magazine personalities

TINTYPE

JEFF HOWLETT

BY ELLEN GURLEY

You all know what a tintype photograph is. Some people call it old-timey and many have gone to an amusement park and had a digital image taken and it was modified to look black and grey or brown and black. Either way, you've seen the modern rip-off, even if you haven't seen a real tintype yourself.

If you google the term, you will see many images of people not smiling in tintype pictures. It's an interesting thing - not to smile- as we all remember growing up being urged to do so. There are many reasons why they didn't smile in said old-timey photographs. Most of them were taken of people at war time or at times of poverty - no reason to smile there. Some were taken of important people (writers, mathematicians, explorers) who didn't want to go down in history with that one photograph - that one chance - as a clown. Some people used to think that smiling wasn't civil. But I know when I heard we had someone in our area doing actual tintype photograph, that gave me reason to smile.

Rock Hill's Jeff Howlett has a studio completely dedicated to capture tintypes and developing them in the old-timey technique of lacquer on metal. It's wonderful. I had a family tintype done myself. Having apprenticed under an Ellen Susan, Jeff has been doing tintypes for two years now. He's an IT professional as his 9 to 5 but still manages to book upwards of fifty shoots a week.

"Filmmaking and photography are my passionate core, however being a single father I have to balance finances with my art. I produce images when I am not spending time with my children. I have a wonderful relationship with my children's mother, so we are able to balance family time fairly."

In this wet tintype photograph process, Jeff uses a collodion emulsion with silver that literally ends up making your image. The process is fascinating and Jeff is dedicated to helping his client obtain a timeless image of themselves or with their families. The most popular size he shoots is a 4X5 and that runs you $40.00. You can hire him for an event (who wouldn't want to leave your wedding with their own tintype) or you can book an appointment to see him in the studio. You'll be glad that you did.

HICKORY BEER

BY ELLEN GURLEY

“Charlotte has a lot of wonderful breweries and we don’t have to travel out of town for beer anymore...but that doesn’t mean we shouldn’t.”

I’ve said it before and I’ll say it again: Charlotte has a lot of wonderful breweries and we don’t have to travel out of town for beer anymore... but that doesn’t mean we shouldn’t. Hickory isn’t too far away and Olde Hickory Brewery is nothing to scoff at.

With three locations in downtown Hickory alone, over twenty years of experience and a presence in over thirty restaurants and taprooms in the Charlotte area, I’m impressed. Enough so to venture down and often visit their taproom. And as a bonus I get to enjoy the Blue Ridge Mountains.

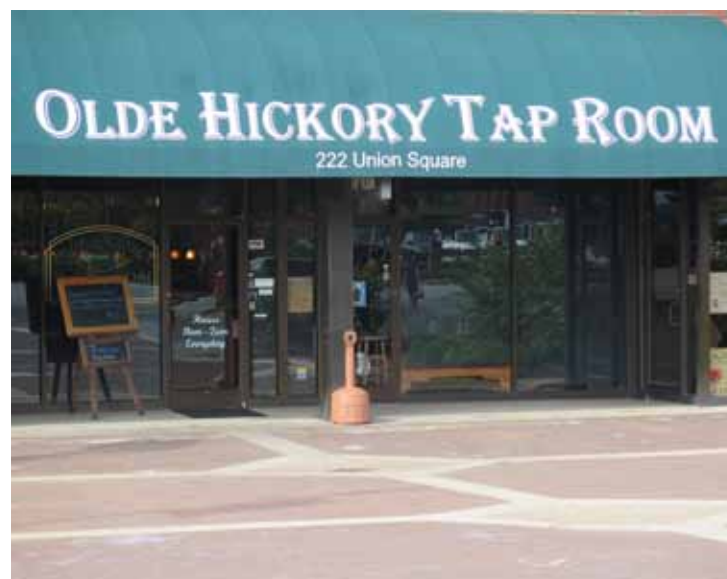

Oh, and their beer festivals! Not to scoff at our beer festivals, but Hickory puts ours to shame with over sixty regional breweries, bottled water, peanut can or pretzel necklaces and live music. Here we are lucky to have access to bathrooms and the ability to taste ten beers. I even get to leave with a collectible glass. Not a dixie cup or the run of the mill BPA-leaking plastic thingy thing. A real glass. You can expect to see some of their most popular brews; Hickory Stick Stout, Oak Aged Redeemer, Seven Devils, Death by Hops and Daniel Boone.

This year it is on Saturday, April 25th at Olde Hickory Station in Hickory. It’s called the www.HickoryHops.com Beer Fest. There will be live music by Baby Black Orchestra and it will feature beers from Asheville Brew., Aviator, Bearwaters, Beer Army Combat, Birdsong, Blind Squirrel, Boone Brew./Blowing Rock Brew., Brevard Brew., Bull City, Carolina Brew., Catawba Brew., Deep River, Duck-Rabbit, Foothills, French Broad, Frog Level, Front Street, Fullsteam, Gizmo, Green Man, Heinzelmännchen, Heist, Highland, Howard, Huske Hardware House, Lexington Ave., Liberty, LoneRider, Mash House, Mother Earth, Mystery, Nantahala, Natty Greene's, New South, Olde Hickory, Oskar Blues, Outer Banks, Oyster House, Pisgah, RJ Rockers, Raleigh Brew., Red Brick/Atlanta Brew., Sierra Nevada, SweetWater, Thomas Creek, Tipping Point, Top of the Hill, Triangle, Triple C., Trophy and Wicked Weed.

If you're lucky, you'll get yelled at by a religious sign-toting zealot (warning you of the dangers of hop consumption) as you enter the festival, but you're sure to be presented with way more beer than you can physically try (trust me, I attempted). So ... no kids, no dogs and no amateurs (at the festival). Take that drive.

LINDA MARTINEZ: STYLE MAVEN

BY MANDI ENGLISH

You can't miss this lady as her personality is as big as the room. I personally met Linda Martinez over twenty years ago at the legendary Mythos. If you don't know the name, Mythos was a popular nightclub many years ago and you could always expect to see Linda there dressed to the nines and truly fabulous.

Of course, like so many Charlotte A-listers, there is a story there. Originally from Atlanta, this Cuban-blooded, rolling stone has been all over and back again on her journey. Linda lives here in Charlotte and runs a fashion blog called StyledNow! while working as the store director and jewelry buyer for Sloan Boutique in Dilworth.

This fashion guru got her start at fourteen while working at a place in the Virgin Islands. Jolly Rogers was a jewelry shop owned by family friends. At such a young age, she wasn't even allowed to ring up people, but she was allowed to show and present the jewelry. There's where her obsession began. Her mom is from NC, so for college Linda attended Brevard. She majored in criminal justice and got her paralegal certificate, but her passion is fashion and that is what she chose to follow.

"The 'glamorous' world of fashion is not what it once was back in the day". Linda remembers that "years ago, every store had sales people that built relationships with their customers. Your salesperson knew you, your style, the colors you loved most and how to match your accessories just and so."

Like her fashion icons, Garbo, Hepburn and Kelly, Linda knows how to "do" classic styling and beauty. This skill was born from the art of knowing your customer. She honed this skill by working for Chanel, Jordan Marsh, Saks, Perris and Montaldo's.

She pulls her inspiration from everything around her making her own brand of style flexible - bouncing from bohemian chic to classic conservative. "Fashion repeats itself", she says, while citing NOW as her favorite era of fashion - with so many elements of every era. "Today we see the fun (yet powerful) Gatsby era, the crafted suits and cuts of the '50's and '60's and the soft styles of the late '60's and '70's all mixed in with the bright and strange confusion of fashion from the '80's and the laid back grunge of the '90's."

When she realized she had a flair in the fashion world, she started by helping friends and clients sort through and organize their closets to find outfits that work and get rid of those that don't work for their life style and personality. From there she was on her path to making her mark by shopping and advising clients on the outfits for the everyday and special events - matching everything with the perfect accessory.

Linda's savvy eye has lead her to style for many local publications, commercials, photoshoots, and television. She's the fashion and styling consultant for Colleen Odegaard (of WCNC's show Charlotte Today - where Linda has a regular monthly fashion and trends segment). Her lucky clients at Sloan get her individual touch in their lives. Go see her. Become a client of hers yourself at StyledNow! today. Whether it be finding the perfect accessory for an outfit or finding the perfect outfit for an accessory, you can't stump her. And you can't beat her attention to detail and dedication to relationships.

DIDJA KNOW, CHARLOTTE?

BY ELLEN GURLEY

There's an amazing beverage out of Mooresville that you should try for your self. www.UncleScottsRootBeer.com is locally owned and is cranking out a quality product. Try some. I sure am glad that I did.

Angwish, the band that Nirvana's producer swears is saying "kiss my *ss, Top 40" hails from Charlotte. They have begun a ten month tour all over the US and Germany. Catch them on May 29th at Smokey Joe's and buy their CD at www.Angwish.com

Bob Peters left Pisces and recently celebrated his first night as leading mixologist at the Ritz-Carlton's Punch Room on Valentine's Day. Visit him soon at 201 East Trade Street.

www.KenFoust.com can often be seen all over Charlotte playing his fiddle, banjo or guitar on the patios and front porches of homes, coffee shops and restaurants. He has cranked out a collaboration CD with Jim Brock, Jamie Hoover and other local legends. Pick it up yourself at www.cdbaby.com/cd/kenfoust

Free Range Brewing slates their opening for this spring. See you there.

Hayley Moran, Charlotte's own award-winning tattoo artist and guitarist of Shot Silk, has left Fu's Tattoos after many years of service to open her own studio. Go check her out. There's a bit of a list to get on but she's well worth the wait. Haylo Healing Arts Lounge is open for business at 1111 Central Ave. www.BodyArtByHayley.com

Within the next few months, www.NoDaBrewing.com is opening another facility at 2921 North Tryon Street. They will be keeping their current location at 2229 North Davidson Street open as a storefront. Congratulations for the growth from My City.

www.RedClayCiderworks.com will be "Charlotte's first hard cider producer, crafting small batch ciders from apples sourced right here in North Carolina". Look forward to their opening this spring.

Benji Hughes has not squandered his musical momentum. See for yourself and purchase his recent four CD release at BenjiHughes.com

Charlotte has a new uptown mural. It's a collaboration with (almost famous duo) Matt Moore and Matt Hooker. It is vibrant and on the side of Phil's NY Deli & Tavern at 105 E. 5th Street. "It'll have Queen Charlotte pushing a TNT plunger on the far left end and the wire will wind over to the crown which will be bursting with all things Charlotte" as Hooker explains. Charlotte, I'd love to see more of this. See the finished product with a slated completion date of St. Patrick's Day at www.HookerMedia.com

ASK THE CLOWN

ADVICE FROM MARTIN "THE CLOWN" BARRY

Dear Clown,
I work in a professional office environment and I have a problem that I need to address with a co-worker. This person is nice enough, gets work done efficiently, and has no disciplinary problems at all. The trouble is the way this person smells. Clothing and hair always appear to be clean, but there is a strong unpleasant odor about this person that worsens through the day. How do I approach this?
Signed, Unscented Supervisor

Dear Unscented,

If you happen to have human resource personnel in your organization, these folks are often trained to handle this very situation in a sensitive and timely manner. If you DO NOT have human resources personnel available, then approach this matter privately and sensitively with this individual. I am certain you can both come to some common ground and find relief for your work environment.

Dear Clown,
I have been married just over 15 years to the love of my life. I wish to surprise her and my kids with a trip for Christmas this year, but I have trouble finding a way to do so without telling a lie. My wife handles all of the bill paying, bank transfers, and other financial matters and she would know instantly if something was awry. How can I make this happen without feeling like I betrayed her?
Signed, Maker not Manager

Dear Maker,
Your employer or bank may be able to help you in this endeavor. There are often "Christmas Club" type accounts that are made available to earners for this very reason. You may wish to use a different bank altogether for this account if your wife will have a chance of becoming suspicious. If she does find out about it, come clean and remember that you still get to surprise the kids!

Do you have a question for The Clown? Write him at Martin@MyCityMagazine.net

Dear Clown,
I have come to admire someone quite a bit and I would like to take it further. I have attempted to find time for us to do something together on several occasions, but my efforts are met with sparse response, if any. At very least, I would like this person to be a friend if the pursuit of something else is not possible. Whatever you advise, I will follow to the letter.
Signed, Not So Secret Admirer

Dear Not So,
My best suggestion here is to find out more about this person you wish to pursue. Are they in a relationship currently? Have they recently been hurt in a break up? There are many reasons that people do not respond well in these matters, including the possibility that they may not know enough about you to talk freely. To gather this intel, you need to be a friend first. Keep it light and fun for both of you. Within that light, things will progress as they were meant to progress. Do not let a wish for a relationship get in the way of being a good friend.

STASH PAD

BY ELLEN GURLEY

Corrie Throckmorton and Heather Lamparter have recently opened doors to the Stash Pad in the heart of Plaza-Midwood. They put the icing on the cake with a grand opening party including a string quartet doing all David Bowie songs while surrounded by their friends and family. These people have been with them every step of the way. Corrie's boyfriend, Jason, threw up dressing rooms. Longtime bandmate of Corrie's and well-known interior designer, Scott Weaver, fancied up the place, with silent partner, Kelly Call's boyfriend Chanselor "Chance" Jones collaborating on a mural. Heather's boyfriend, Dudley, designed the lovely logo. This is truly a family affair with landlord, Shelton Drum (of Heroes Aren't Hard to Find fame), and next door neighbour and dear friend, Hope Nichols of Boris & Natasha's, watching on as it all unfolds.

Heather worked many years at Hong Kong Vintage and Corrie put in many-an-hour for Hope at both the clothing store and the former wig shop, Fifi Mahoney's. Neither are a stranger to trade shows and booth rentals. Each of them have an eye for nostalgia, value and style. Both have been collectors and clothes hounds since either of them can remember. So it is with competence and confidence that the girls present to you the Stash Pad.

They have clothing and accessories for sale including costumes from the late, local drag star Miss Kitty, Hope Nichols (worn in Fetchin' Bones) and DJ Scott Weaver (worn in many bands, photos & acts) and some housewares beautifully scattered about. There is new (Full Breech tee-shirts), handmade, local (Kristen Miller's Sew Red locally made bell bottoms - as seen on Kat von D.), men's, women's, vintage (Babyshaker albums), imported (Kelly buys jewelry during her Guatemalan travels as she is partnered with Doctors without Borders) and hard-to-find makeup and hair products (Medusa and Special Effects). Let's not forget the off-the-wall and the sensible wigs and the (seriously) flying-off-the-shelf clip-on ponytails. Get yours. They will soon have an e-commerce included website but their doors are open for business and they are ready to rock.

MARTIN "THE CLOWN" BARRY AND THE CHARLOTTE ROLLER GIRLS

BY ELLEN GURLEY

The staff and families of My City Magazine are highly awaiting the start of the Charlotte Roller Girls 2015 season. This year, like every other, there will be some familiar faces in the game and some have gone to other leagues or projects. You're sure to see Liz "Lizaster" McLaughlin and other movers and shakers, and, of course, you will see the Clown. I'm talking about Martin "the Clown" Barry.

Each year the Charlotte Roller Girls have their every move broadcasted to the filled bleachers by the Clown. He is as much a Charlotte Roller Girl as anyone else on that floor. My kids look forward to seeing him. We love him - so much so that I've hired him as an interviewer, advice columnist and a cartoonist. Not only do we have a thing for the athletes, we have a big thing for the Clown.

If you don't already know him as the MC announcer and face for our rollergirls, then meet Martin. He is highly skilled in creating his look (matching perfectly with the girls) complete with doing his own make-up. He's such a talented man in that department that many people book him around Halloween for their costumes (including but not limited to prosthesis and coloured contact lenses. Around Halloween he can also be seen some years at Netherworld as a fixture in their haunted house. Also in the fall he heads "the Clown Crawl" wherein he and his colleagues (other people who clown around or whom he has made-up) and they pick a neighborhood for the year. The past five years have raised over $100,000 in school supplies benefiting A Child's Place.

In addition to the time spent at his 9 to 5, with his two growing kids, in his personal life and with his clown duties, this guy raises money for local charities, keeps up with a touring sports team and guest appears all over the east coast at parties and events. See your Charlotte Roller Girls and your new favourite clown (yes, I'm willing to share him) soon as the 2015 season will be announced during the first week of March.
